Tree Removal in Residential Areas

What do I need to know as a residential property owner about tree removal?

If you intend to remove or top any tree that is 6 inches or greater in diameter (measured 4 ½ feet above ground) from your property, you will need to obtain a no-fee tree removal permit from the City, and also replace it with a new tree. Dead trees that are removed will not require a replacement tree to be planted, unless the property owner desires to do so.

Who is affected by the tree protection regulations?

The tree protection regulations apply to all property, including all residential properties, within the city limits of Redmond.

Why are tree cutting permits required in residential areas?

The no-fee residential tree cutting permits are required for more than just aesthetic reasons. Tree removal without subsequent tree replacement can possibly cause or create water runoff and erosion problems for your property and neighboring properties as well. It becomes a neighborhood/community problem – not just a private property issue.

Why did the City adopt such an ordinance?

The City adopted such an ordinance because trees provide rich habitat for wildlife, stabilize and enrich the soil, improve air and water quality and moderate the effect of winds and temperatures. Many citizens have also commented that they moved to and remain in Redmond because they enjoy the many trees that are a part of our community.

How many trees can I remove?

You should always contact the City prior to any tree removal. There are many factors that determine how many trees can be removed – such as the size of your property; the size of the trees; the number of trees that you want to remove, retain, and replant; the health of the trees that are proposed to be removed; etc. The City can help determine how many trees can be removed within each calendar year, and whether it is a no-fee tree cutting or a fee based clearing and grading permit that you should be seeking (for multiple trees).

How do I determine what kind of trees to replant?

A general rule for replanting is "like for like". It also depends on the purpose of the new trees. They could be replanted for the purpose of
